Expressions of Interest Techtextil Mumbai - 10-12 October 2007

Are you interested in showcasing your manufacturing or R&D capabilities to a developing country in a "Team Australia" approach, with the prospect of government funding? Read on.

The TTNA is seeking expressions of interest from Australian manufacturers and R&D organizations for taking part in an Australian stand at Techtextil Mumbai, India, in October 2007. If we receive sufficient interest in the next week, we will be able to investigate options of government funding assistance in the new year.

This is the first Techtextil to be held in India. It will run simultaneously with Heimtextil India and Texworld India to complete the theme, 'Textile Days India'. Full details can be found on <http://techtextil.messefrankfurt.com/india/en/home.html>

- Around 100 exhibitors and 3,000 visitors are expected to attend Techtextil in Mumbai, representing the entire technical textiles value chain with interests in all twelve areas of application – from agricultural through to medical and hygiene technical textiles.
- The Techtextil Symposium will be offering lectures, presentations and discussion forums covering innovative topics for suppliers, users and experts from research, engineering and industry.

India, with its enormous plans for development in almost every area, offers unparalleled opportunities to welcome the use of technical textiles – which presently account for 17 percent of textile production, the market for which is expected to be worth around US$7 billion by 2007.
