TTNA MEMBERSHIP

The Technical Textile and Nonwoven Association (TTNA) was incorporated in 2000 for the purpose of nurturing and promoting technological innovations for the technical and nonwoven textile related sectors in Australasia. Its membership is diverse and dynamic, embracing a wide range of materials, processes, products and applications. Globally, the sector is growing and now represents a significant proportion of world textile manufacturing and trade.

The TTNA's primary objective is to provide a forum for the advancement of the industry by:

- advocating the common interests of the industry and to promote the growth and profitability of the TTN industry
- encouraging an internationally competitive and innovative TTN industry
- acting as a conduit through which information on international trends in manufacturing, research & development and education within the global textile and nonwoven industry is communicated to members
- identifying, discussing and responding to members' issues and needs
- generating and disseminating relevant industry information
- fostering the development and exchange of technical information
- promoting the significance of the technical textiles and nonwoven sector within wider industry
- representing members' interests when dealing directly with government bodies including policy direction on the Strategic Investment Program (SIP)

Membership is open to all Australian and New Zealand industry stakeholders including manufacturers, suppliers, education and R&D institutions and consultants to the industry.

Membership of the TTNA offers your company the following benefits:

- access to State, Territory and Federal Government Departments and Ministers
- direct face to face access to state and federal government personnel involved in the industry
- direct input into the development of policy and programs for the industry
- networking opportunities at technical forums, including:
  - knowledge forums
  - seminars
  - conferences
- members rates and preferential invites for:
  - education courses and training workshops
  - industry conferences and reciprocal member events, training programs and conferences (including international conferences)
- communication on international trends in manufacturing, research & development and education
- eligibility to represent the industry at board level, playing a role directing the association
- showcasing opportunities for new products processes or technologies
- assistance in identifying and accessing government program
